Newsletter – May, 2010 - So You Want to Live to 100?

According to a recent article in the medical journal The Lancet, one of the most important accomplishments of the 20th Century is the gain of 30 years in life expectancy in North America, Western Europe and Australia.

Olivia Mitchell, Wharton School Professor of Employee Benefit Plans says “{there will be} a demographic revolution the likes of which we have never seen before on Earth.”

It is readily apparent that the concept of ‘normal’ retirement at age 65 will not be sustainable. Retirement age will have to become more proportional with the growing length of life, maybe 70 or even 75 over time within a few decades.

How will these changes affect your retirement planning? These issues are critical to your future financial well-being and a professional advisor such as myself can mean the difference between success and failure.

At www.RetirementScore.com you can get a Retirement Ready or Not? Score and find out if you are on track for a great retirement. Get a Free Report and Video, full of great planning ideas. Request a free consultation to learn about these ideas in person.
